

A colorful illustration of three children playing in the rain. In the foreground, a child wearing a blue raincoat and a blue hat is crouching next to a small campfire made of sticks, with bright orange flames. To the left, another child in a blue and white striped shirt and a blue beanie with a pom-pom stands watching. To the right, a third child in a green shirt and dark shorts holds a large blue and white umbrella. The ground is wet and reflects the light, with several small paper boats floating nearby. Raindrops are depicted as small blue lines falling around the children.
